

COL D'ORCIA

BRUNELLO DI MONTALCINO 2015

Tuscany, Italy

94
POINTS
Wine Spectator
JUNE 2020

This combines the best characteristics of Sangiovese, with cherry and strawberry fruit, earth, leather and iron notes and balsamic elements of wild thyme, rosemary and Mediterranean scrub. Shows a bit of heat on the finish, yet remains fresh and long. — B.S.

94
POINTS
vinous
APRIL 2020

...Silky textures meld into woodland red berry fruits, zesty spice, hints of cedar, savory herbs, saline minerals, and mounting tannins. The finish is long and structured, yet there remains enough primary fruit to balance it all out... resonating acids, intriguing hints of citrus, and spice... — E.G.

94
POINTS
JAMES SUCKLING.COM
SEPTEMBER 2020

A full, very layered young Brunello with cherry, floral and light toffee and cedar character. It's very layered and fine-tannined. Lively acidity and focus. Really attractive dried citrus at the end. From organically grown grapes... Try after 2022 and onwards. — J.S.

93
POINTS
Robert Parker
eRobertParker.com
JANUARY 2020

...Shows an impressive evolution in the glass with those earthy and sanguine notes lifting to reveal sweet oak tones of vanilla and baking spice that remain pronounced in a second underlayer... Puts on a good show with wild berry, blackcurrant and dried black-berry... — M.L.

90
POINTS
WINE ENTHUSIAST MAGAZINE
MAY 2020

Warm and structured, this has aromas evoking scorched earth, underbrush and mature black-skinned berry. On the firm palate, assertive, close-grained tannins accompany dried black cherry, licorice, sage and tobacco while the warmth of alcohol caps off the finish. —K.O.