Mango dessert, banoffee pie, vanilla, parmesan and apricot compote make for a very opulent nose indeed. Despite the resounding intensity, the full-bodied and dense palate has enough acidity to lift the fleshy tropical fruit and, unbelievably, this ends quite bright. Drink now. – J.S.

...Toasted spice and apricot are followed by honey, poached pear and sweet spice such as cinnamon and nutmeg (but only just a pinch) ...a solid 10-year drinking window. There is a touch of sweet honey on the finish. – M.L.

Mouthwatering acidity creates a bright frame for the focused flavors of persimmon, honey and lemon curd, with a rich hint of chopped almond that glides on the palate of this medium- to full-bodied Chardonnay. The lingering finish echoes accents of spice and mineral. – A.N.
