POINTS

DECEMBER 2016

The 2015 Aruma is still a blend of Malbec grapes from Altamira and Agelo... fermented in stainless steel tanks and bottled unoaked after being kept with the fine lees for some eight months, as it's bottled in different lots, with the last bottling being almost one year after the first, aiming to keep the freshness of the wine. It's juicy, fresh and fruit-driven, clean, with some grapey aromas and contained ripeness. The palate is soft and nicely balanced, easy to drink, and ideal with some light foods. - L.G.
