OCTOBER 2019

Dark stones and graphite with black cherries and espresso, as well as very complex, woody spices and iodine.... intense and so seamlessly rich... The tannins are substantial but supple; the rich black cherry and dark chocolate flavors are just superb. So long, so dense and so very, very impressive. Best from 2025. – J.S.

Bright and fresh up front, with sanguine and savory notes mixed with dried lavender, damson plum puree and gently steeped black cherry fruit. A smoldering cast iron note runs through the finish, pulling the fruit along with it and leaving behind a very terroir-driven impression. Best from 2023 through 2036. –J.M.

DECEMBER 2019

The 2017 Cote Rotie la Landonne (tasted from tank prior to bottling) reveals the lieu-dit's signature notes of mocha and roasted meat. It's full-bodied, rich and velvety, with a long, licorice-tinged finish. It's not fruity per se, but it is loaded with glycerol and blows away the 2016. - J.C.

...Taut and structured on entry and then broader in the midpalate, offering concentrated, spice- and mineral-laced dark berry and bitter cherry flavors sweetened by a sexy floral pastille accent... Sharp delineation on the youthfully tannic finish, which lingers with impressive, floral-driven tenacity. – J.R.
